Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an image display device such as a liquid crystal display device. 2. Description of the Related Art In an image display device such as a liquid crystal display device, irregularities are generated on a surface of a substrate such as an active matrix substrate and a black matrix substrate during formation of a wiring pattern. In order to decrease such irregularities, Japanese Patent Application Laid-open No. 2005-254264 proposes a technique of a black matrix region in which a black matrix pattern is formed, and Japanese Patent Application Laid-open No. 2008-283628 proposes a technique in which a black matrix region is formed between pixel regions and a black matrix pattern is formed over a region thereof where irregularities generated during formation of a wiring pattern are generated. In addition, Japanese Patent Application Laid-open No. 2006-248719 proposes a technique in which, in an active matrix substrate which includes a plurality of signal lines to which a common electrode is connected in common, a pad-electrode is formed in a region of a black matrix pattern formed over each of the signal lines in which irregularities are generated during formation of a wiring pattern, and in which the pad-electrode is connected to the common electrode. A) Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a semiconductor device having a transistor and a display device including an organic material. Note that, throughout this specification, a semiconductor device indicates all the devices that can operate by utilizing semiconductor characteristics, and an electro-optical device, a light emitting display device, a semiconductor circuit, and an electronic device are all semiconductor devices. B) Description of the Related Art Various metal oxides are used for a variety of applications. Indium oxide is a well-known material and is
